As North Carolina continues to lead in military innovation and community partnerships, the 2025 North Carolina Defense Summit (NCDS) offers a pivotal opportunity to focus on a topic at the forefront of many defense communities across the state—strengthening military spouse resilience. Hosted by the North Carolina Military Affairs Commission (NCMAC) in partnership with the Association of Defense Communities (ADC), this event will bring together military installations, host communities, and defense leaders to drive meaningful change.

Taking place in Cary, North Carolina, from April 28-30, 2025, the summit will feature dynamic panels, inspiring keynote speakers, a networking reception, spouse recognition awards, and so much more. Dive into critical discussions on housing, education, child care, employment, and other key issues shaping the lives of military families and enhancing mission readiness.
